From the Editor

What is the flight plan for 2020?

Welcome to the winter issue of On Final 33! As the previous issue's column discussed fall flying, I hope everyone was able to climb in the cockpit and add some enjoyable hours to the logbook over the Holidays with family and friends.

We have been blessed with beautiful aviating weather up until now, however as I write these words a winter front is moving in promising to bring several inches of fresh snow and icing conditions. Reflecting back, 2019 had many positive and negative aviation headlines. From the start, aspiring aviators to current pilots were affected by the government shutdown and the FAA's lengthy response times. Then the unfortunate Boeing 737 MAX's fatal flaws swallowed up aviation headlines for the remainder of the year.

On his online blog, John Zimmerman highlights five positive trends General Aviation continually is experiencing right now.

“Lower cost avionics are taking over, backcountry flying is hot, community spirit is strong, weather tools are much better, airlines are hiring.” (Source: www.airfactsjournal.com)

So what is the flight plan for 2020? A big thank you to all those who participated in the recent “KSHR Regional Pilot Survey.” Of the ninety individuals contacted, roughly 30% have responded. After as much feedback is gathered as possible, I look forward to sharing the results with you in the Spring issue. By leveraging data, we will be able to build a strategic plan moving forward. If you have not taken survey, please do so when able by clicking the link below: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/TNRGSS7>

Thank you for participating in pilot survey!

Until next time, get those wheels up!

FAA Proposes Eliminating Several Wyoming Instrument Approaches>>>

Source Joe MacGuire, Casper EAA Chapter 420

Friday, December 17th

"Good Afternoon and Happy Holidays.

The FAA has proposed decommissioning (eliminating) the following instrument flight approaches in Wyoming as a cost saving measure. Elimination of these approaches will adversely affect all parts of Wyoming. I have attached the e-mail and letter that I wrote to the FAA with my reasons for opposition. I have written the FAA and requested an extension to the comment period due to the Holidays thru January 15th, 2020.

I have prepared an e-mail opposing this measure and attached it as a document if you would like to sign it and send it in, or, you can just erase the upper portion of this e-mail and send the bottom to:
